RESULTS OF OPERATIONS

The Fund's net assets decreased by $1,430.8 million to $7,322.2 million from December 31, 2023 to June 30, 2024. The Fund had net redemptions of $1,428.1 million for the period. The portfolio's performance increased assets by $191.4 million. The Fund paid distributions totalling $194.1 million. Common Units returned 2.4% after fees and expenses for the six-month period ended June 30, 2024.

Economic weakness in Canada became more apparent during the period given the household sector's higher sensitivity to interest rates. The economy escaped recession in the second half of 2023 but continued to fall short of expectations so far in 2024. This was despite support from strong population growth, which is projected to slow significantly in the quarters ahead.

Signs of a slowdown in U.S. economic activity appeared as restrictive monetary policies worked their way through major developed economies with long and variable lags. While U.S. economic growth continued to outperform its peers, a softening became evident in the second quarter of 2024.

In June 2024, the Bank of Canada (BoC) lowered its overnight policy rate by 25 basis points (bps) to 4.75%. This was the first change to the policy interest rate since July 2023, and it marked the first critical step toward lower interest rates.

The U.S. Federal Reserve Board left its policy interest rate on hold in June 2024, but the global monetary easing cycle began with other central banks, including the BoC, lowering their key policy interest rates in response to slowing economic growth and moderating inflationary pressures. Disappointing U.S. inflation data led to fears of a reacceleration during the first quarter of 2024 and resulted in a significant decrease in expectations for interest rate cuts relative to the start of the year. However, more recent data revealed that price pressures were moderating. U.S. labour market data was mixed, but the trend also suggested a slowing.

The Fund is invested solely in bank deposits with Schedule 1 Canadian banks, which drove its performance over the period.

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS

We are cautiously optimistic as we look toward the second half of 2024. Equity markets have been buoyed by the prospect of interest rate cuts by leading central banks as well as the enthusiasm for all things related to the artificial intelligence (AI) boom. We see indications of softer economic activity due to weakening of consumer spending trends. Softer economic growth along with moderating inflationary trends are the leading arguments for lower interest rates. Any extension of the higher interest rate environment may lead to a recalibration of equity valuations.

As population growth slows in Canada, long-term potential growth prospects could hinge on an improvement in productivity, which has been on a downward trend for several years. AI provides some hope and may lead to improvement if adoption is successful. However, broader government policy support is necessary to drive long-term investment and competitiveness.

We believe that the BoC will make at least two additional 25-bp cuts to its policy interest rate by year-end. However, even with these cuts, a large number of mortgages are due to renew at considerably higher interest rates in 2025, posing a challenge to the Canadian economy.

While lower borrowing costs suggest a cyclical bottom in home sales is approaching, we expect housing activity is unlikely to rebound meaningfully in the near term. The inventory of existing homes for sale has continued to rise as sales activity remains slow. Rent price pressures are also easing, suggesting overall housing is returning to better equilibrium.

Credit spreads (the difference between the yield on corporate bonds over government bonds) are tight, offering historically low return versus government bonds, so this area also offers less attraction compared to stocks. However, until we assign a higher probability to a recession, cash and short-term bonds are more attractive than mid- or longer-term bonds, offering competitive returns with minimal volatility.

(1) This information is derived from the Fund's semi-annual and audited annual financial statements.

(2) Management expense ratio is calculated based on expenses charged to the Fund (excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs) and is expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net assets for the period/year, including the Fund's proportionate share of any underlying fund(s) expenses, if applicable. The Effective HST tax rate is calculated using the attribution percentage for each province based on unitholder residency and can be different from 13%.

(3) The trading expense ratio represents total commissions and other portfolio transaction costs expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net assets during the period/year, including the Fund's proportionate share of such expenses of any underlying fund(s), if applicable.

(4) The Fund's portfolio turnover rate indicates how actively the Fund's portfolio advisor manages its portfolio investments. A portfolio turnover rate of 100% is equivalent to the Fund buying and selling all of the securities in its portfolio once in the course of the fiscal period/year. The higher a Fund's portfolio turnover rate in a period/year, the greater the trading costs payable by the Fund in the period/year, and the greater the chance of an investor receiving taxable capital gains in the period/year. There is not necessarily a relationship between a higher turnover rate and the performance of a Fund. Portfolio turnover rate is calculated by dividing the lesser of the cost of purchases and the proceeds of sales of portfolio securities for the period/year, and excluding cash and short-term investments maturing in less than one year, and before assets acquired from a merger, if applicable, by the average of the monthly fair value of investments during the period/year.

(5) This information is provided for the period(s)/year(s) ended June 30, 2024 and December 31.

(6) Closing market price.
