RESULTS OF OPERATIONS

The net asset value of the Marret High Yield Bond Fund (the Fund) decreased by $0.2 million to $1.1 million from March 31, 2019 to September 30, 2019. The Fund had net redemptions of $0.1 million during the period. The portfolio's performance decreased assets by $0.1 million. Class A units returned 1.6% after fees and expenses for the six-month period ended September 30, 2019. Over the same time period, the Fund's benchmark returned 3.6%. The benchmark is a combination of the ICE BofAML High Yield Canadian Issuers Total Return Index - 50% and ICE BofAML U.S. High Yield Total Return Index- 50%.

The performance of the Fund's other classes is substantially similar to that of Class A units, except for differences in the structure of fees and expenses. For the returns of the Fund's other classes, please refer to the "Past performance" section.

The previous two quarters were characterized by a persistent slowdown in global growth and trade, with a particularly acute slowing in the manufacturing sector. In response to the slowdown, the softening of inflation dynamics in advanced economies and heightened trade tensions (for example, between the United States and China, and Japan and South Korea) central banks have continued to provide additional monetary policy support. The prompt support provided by central banks caused both bond and risk markets to rally globally during the period.

The Fund generated positive returns for the period, yet trailed the index, primarily due to its lower duration. We continue to maintain our late-cycle defensive positioning, focusing on capital preservation given current valuations. The Fund benefited from its larger core shorter-dated positions providing attractive risk-adjusted returns, while being adversely affected by a small pocket of total return securities, predominantly related to energy.

The Fund remains overweight higher-quality securities (BB and above), while remaining underweight securities of lower credit quality, given its fundamental view on the economy. It has also added exposure to higher-quality investment-grade-rated securities in both credit and governments. While the Fund remains underweight in its credit exposure, it remains overweight the cable/media and telecommunications sectors, while remaining underweight services, technology and banks.

Overall, the Fund underperformed its benchmark for the period.

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS

It is quite important to note that high-yield yields have now fallen more than 200 basis points (bps) this year, while spreads have tightened over 125 bps. This dramatic move has happened despite significant deterioration in economic conditions, both in the United States and globally. Historically, economic deterioration has led to spread widening with yields generally climbing higher, even as government yields were falling. Whereas the economy has generally unfolded in line with our expectations, the market reaction has not.

Our cautious stance focusing on the economic environment has not been rewarded, as central bank accommodation currently seems to have a greater influence on the markets rather than fundamentals. While the U.S. consumer currently remains resilient, the manufacturing sector has now firmly entered contraction, and there are early signs that the services sector may also be softening. At the same time, global economic policy uncertainty has never been higher, leading to a further softening in global capital expenditures, which is also dampening growth.

While our experience has historically shown us that now is a time for caution, we are also prepared to reassess our current stance and add risk more aggressively if any critical conditions change. For example, if valuations are adjusted to where credit spreads widen to provide appropriate compensation for the persistently weak economic environment we are currently facing. Or if there was an expectation that fundamental data will improve and central bank actions are successful in stabilizing the economy and extending the cycle, or that trade conflict will be resolved for the intermediate term, which would remove the uncertainty that has contributed to weakening global growth.

In the absence of any of these conditions, we will continue to be patient and look to generate stable returns focusing on capital preservation.

Effective after the close of business on August 2, 2019, the classes of the Fund that were eligible for CI Preferred Pricing Program (CIPP) transitioned from a tiered pricing model to a fee distribution model.

Effective September 19, 2019, James McPhedran became a member of the Independent Review Committee (IRC) of CI Funds and effective August 15, 2019, John Reucassel resigned as a member of the IRC of CI Funds.

(1) This information is derived from the Fund's semi-annual and annual financial statements.

(2) Management expense ratio is calculated based on expenses charged to the Fund (excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs) and is expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net assets for the period, including the Fund's proportionate share of any underlying fund(s) expenses, if applicable. The Effective HST tax rate is calculated using the attribution percentage for each province based on unitholder residency and can be different from 13%.

(3) The trading expense ratio represents total commissions and other portfolio transaction costs expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net assets during the period, including the Fund's proportionate share of such expenses of any underlying fund(s), if applicable.

(4) The Fund's portfolio turnover rate indicates how actively the Fund's portfolio advisor manages its portfolio investments. A portfolio turnover rate of 100% is equivalent to the Fund buying and selling all of the securities in its portfolio once in the course of the fiscal period. The higher a Fund's portfolio turnover rate in a period, the greater the trading costs payable by the Fund in the period, and the greater the chance of an investor receiving taxable capital gains in the period. There is not necessarily a relationship between a higher turnover rate and the performance of a Fund. Portfolio turnover rate is calculated by dividing the lesser of the cost of purchases and the proceeds of sales of portfolio securities for the period, and excluding cash and short-term investments maturing in less than one year, and before assets acquired from a merger, if applicable, by the average of the monthly fair value of investments during the period.

(5) This information is provided for the period ended September 30, 2019 and the years ended March 31.
