How risky is it?

The value of the pool can go down as well as up. You could lose money.

One way to gauge risk is to look at how much a pool's returns change over time. This is called "volatility".

In general, pools with higher volatility will have returns that change more over time. They typically have a greater chance of losing money and may have a greater chance of higher returns. Pools with lower volatility tend to have returns that change less over time. They typically have lower returns and may have a lower chance of losing money.

A word about tax

In general, you'll have to pay income tax on any money you make on a pool. How much you pay depends on the tax laws where you live and whether or not you hold the pool in a registered plan such as a Registered Retirement Savings Plan, or a Tax-Free Savings Account. Keep in mind that if you hold your pool in a non-registered account, pool distributions are included in your taxable income, whether you get them in cash or have them reinvested.
